Why Investors Should Hold Farmland and Renewable Energy Projects in Their Portfolios

1. As of December 31, 2024, Bonnefield Canadian Farmland LP V, a fund managed by Bonnefield Financial Inc. (“Bonnefield”), has raised over $370 million, comprising 70 properties under management involving 53 farmland tenants farming over 47,374 acres in five provinces.
 2. Farmland offers uncorrelated attractive risk-adjusted returns.
 3. Farmland historically performs well in periods of inflation.
 4. Canadian farmland can hedge climate change impacts in a portfolio.
 5. Canadian farmland has attractive environmental, social, and governance (ESG) characteristics.
1. Global Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy Fund (“GEEREF”) was launched in 2008, capitalized with approximately €242 million; €132 million in A units from public investors and €110 million in B units from private investors.
 2. As of September 30, 2024, GEEREF comprises a total of 207 investments.
 3. The private investors in B units are a select number of investors including the Portland Global Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy Fund LP.
 4. A waterfall distribution provides holders of B units over 50% downside protection, a preferred return and accelerated liquidity compared to A unitholders.

Potential Risks

- While the Manager and the Specialty Investment Managers exercise due diligence throughout the investing process, no guarantees can be given to offset a risk of loss and investors should consult with their Financial Advisor prior to investing in the Fund.
- The Manager believes that given the character of the private investments that are making up the majority of the Fund's holdings, the Fund has less exposure to the market risk than a similar fund invested in publicly listed securities.
- Key risks to performance: failure to meet commitments, risks related to the private portfolio investments, agriculture industry risk, equity risk, general economic and market conditions, liquidity risk, currency and exchange rate risk, and marketability and transferability of units risk.

Please read the "Risk Factors" section in the Offering Memorandum for a more detailed description of all the relevant risks.
